Vienna, Virginia (prsafe) January 6, 2021 - Johnson and Masumi, a Vienna immigration law firm, recently released a new educational resource on their website that discusses how to go from a P1 visa to green card status. The attorneys at Johnson and Masumi have designed this article to help anyone better understand what a P1 visa is and how the transition process really works. They hope this information will help clear up some frequently asked questions as well as highlight the benefit of having experienced attorneys on your side when dealing with these legal issues.

In the article, Johnson and Masumi offer some valuable information that explains how difficult it can be for the average person to accomplish the transition on their own. It also goes into detail regarding who is eligible for the transition and what forms you will need to fill out in order to get the process moving. The firm has a long history of helping guide clients with creative and effective legal strategies that rely on the unique circumstances of your case. The firm prides itself on the ability to provide personalized legal services that are tailored specifically to your needs.

While the most recent addition to the firm's website focuses on providing specific information regarding P1 visas and the process of transitioning to green card status, their website also allows for visitors to educate themselves on their team, experience, and other legal service offerings. Johnson and Masumi offer legal solutions in the areas of employment visas, non-immigrant visas, student visas, asylum, deportation defense, and more.

The attorneys at Johnson and Masumi pride themselves on offering thorough and creative legal solutions that are not simply applied similarly to all clients. Each case is handled with a personal touch that ensures you get the most effective strategy for your unique case. Their team strives to help clients feel confident and protected so that they are not intimidated by any part of the process. When you work with Johnson and Masumi, you become a part of the family.
