Message

Shanghai, China (prsafe) January 10, 2026 - Future Electronics, a leading global distributor of electronic components, was recognized by onsemi (Nasdaq: ON) with "China Customer Growth Achievement 2025" award, in recognition of its outstanding business development capabilities and technical support services in the Mass Market segment in China.

The award was officially presented during onsemi's 2025 APAC EP&S Training and Certification Conference. Ms. Amy Yin, Head of Mass Market at onsemi China, presented the award to Future Electronics to acknowledge its remarkable achievements in driving customer growth and market coverage.

Mr. Roy Chia, Vice President of Sales at onsemi China, attended the ceremony and remarked: "Future Electronics has a broad customer base in the Mass Market, demonstrating strong market expansion capabilities. We look forward to further strengthening our cooperation in 2026, bringing new momentum to innovation in technology and supply chain services."

Receiving the award on behalf of the company, Raymond Huang, Vice President of Sales at Future Electronics China, said: "Future Electronics remains committed to Demand Creation and supporting the Mass Market, providing customers with timely, professional, and localized support, as well as unique value-added supply chain services. We sincerely thank onsemi for this recognition, which also acknowledges our dedication."

As a global distributor, Future Electronics has proven demand creation capabilities and localized system design centers, providing end-to-end support from product selection, evaluation to design-in, ensuring customers shorten development cycles and enhance product performance.
