Danvers, MA, USA, January 31, 2026 -- Part II of JG Autographs, Inc.â€™s online auction titled Collecting Camelot: The Kennedy Legacy, featuring a diverse selection of autographs, photographs, ephemera, and artifacts related to John F. Kennedy, Jackie, and the Kennedy family and associates, is online now (at www.JG.Limited). The sale ends on Tuesday, February 24th, at 8:30 pm Eastern Time. Â The Part I auction, held in November 2024, contained material from legendary collections, including the Chester Clifton Papers, the estate of Father Ronald Hoskins, the Robert L. White Museum Collection, Evelyn Lincolnâ€™s personal collection, Cecil Stoughtonâ€™s photographic archive, and items from the Dave Powers estate. The Part II auction has material from these same notable collections. Â "The timing of this auction is especially meaningful as the nation approaches the 250th anniversary of the United States, a milestone that invites celebration of the individuals who have shaped the American story,â€• said Jared Gendron, founder and president of JG Autographs, Inc. Â Gendron added, â€œFew figures embody that legacy more powerfully than Kennedy. Alongside Abraham Lincoln, he stands as the most highly collected U.S. president and, arguably, one of the most collected historical figures of all time." The Part II auction contains 530 lots. Â The auction starts strong from the beginning, with lot #1 being a John F. Kennedy autographed 8-inch-by-10-inch glossy photograph depicting a classic studio portrait of Kennedy during his U.S. Senate years. The photo is inscribed in bold ink along the left margin, â€œTo Perry / Best of Luck / John Kennedy / U.S. Senator / Mass.â€• The image retains strong contrast and clarity and is an attractive signed display piece from JFKâ€™s senatorial period. The estimate is $3,500-$4,500. Â Lot #5 is a JFK autographed one-page typed lyrics sheet from his 1960 presidential campaign song â€œHigh Hopes,â€• inscribed at the upper right, â€œFor Dorothy / from / John Kennedy.â€• The lyrics are adapted from Frank Sinatraâ€™s popular recording and reference Kennedyâ€™s candidacy during the 1960 election cycle. Kennedy benefited from the support of Sinatra, who adapted his 1959 hit song â€œHigh Hopesâ€• into a campaign anthem. The sheet should sell for $3,000-$4,000. Â Lot #35 is an Inga Arvad autographed two-page letter from Christmas Day 1943, typed on both sides of a single sheet and signed in red ink â€œYour, Inga-Binga,â€• addressed to John F. Kennedy as "Jack Dearest." Arvad (1913â€“1973) was a Danish journalist, beauty queen (Miss Denmark 1936), and prominent social figure in Washington, D.C. in the 1940s. She became romantically involved with Kennedy while he was a young naval officer. The letter should hit $4,500-$6,000. Â Lot #36 is a George de Mohrenschildt handwritten addressed airmail envelope to Doris Burns, signing his name as â€œG. de Mohrenschildtâ€•. Itâ€™s postmarked Gananoque, Ontario, August 24, 1951. De Mohrenschildt (1911â€“1977) was a Russian-born geologist and petroleum consultant. In the early 1960s, he became acquainted with Lee Harvey Oswald and Marina Oswald. This placed him under intense scrutiny following the assassination. The lot has an estimate of $3,500-$4,500. Â Lot # 6 is a John F. Kennedy handwritten note, penned in ink, requesting travel arrangements for himself and Jacqueline Kennedy, reading in full: â€œPlease make reservations for two returning afternoon of Jan 2nd to Washington from West Palm Beach for Jackie + me â€” J.â€• The note is written in Kennedyâ€™s distinctive hand. The content, although routine, offers a glimpse into JFKâ€™s personal travel planning during his presidency. The note is estimated to breeze to $3,000-$3,500. Â Lot #9 is a John F. Kennedy White House telephone attributed to August Kettean Thomas, Chief of Police of Palm Springs, California, used during JFKâ€™s 1962 visit to the city. The red, white, and blue desk phone was manufactured by Stromberg-Carlson and bears the White House medallion at the center of the rotary dial. Itâ€™s accompanied by the original printed Palm Springs White House telephone directory dated December 1962. The pre-sale estimate is $1,500-$2,000. Â Lot #14 is a John F. Kennedy original admission ticket for the â€œBreakfast with President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy,â€• held on Friday, November 22, 1963, in the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Texas, Fort Worth. The event was sponsored by the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce and scheduled for 8am, just hours before the Presidentâ€™s assassination in Dallas later that day. The ticket is numbered No. 484 and lists an admission price of $3.00. The estimate is $1,500-$2,000. Â Lot #397 is Frank Sturgisâ€™s autographed, handwritten 7-page manuscript on the assassination of President Kennedy, written entirely in pencil within a spiral-bound notebook. The text presents Sturgisâ€™s personal narrative and conspiracy-focused interpretation of events surrounding the JFK assassination and its Cold War context. Sturgis was a

Cuban-American operative and soldier of fortune, best known for his role in the Watergate burglar[illegible]ner $900-$1,200. Â Lot #24 is an Abraham Zapruder autographed First Day Cover honoring John F. K[illegible] 29, 1964, on the official USPS memorial stamp commemorating the late president. The cover features the â€œI[illegible]et with Kennedyâ€™s portrait, dates 1917â€“1963, and the quote â€œAsk not what your country can do f[illegible]u can do for your country.â€• Zapruder (1905-1970) famously filmed JFKâ€™s assassination. The lotâ€™s estimate is $700-$900. Â Lot #332 is a John F. Kennedy Texas Welcome Dinner admission ticket honoring President Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon Johnson, issued by the State Democratic Executive Committee for the formal dinner held at the Municipal Auditorium in Austin, Texas, on November 22, 1963, the date of JFKâ€™s assassination. This gold foil ticket granted admission to the official welcome dinner scheduled for 7:30 pm. Itâ€™s expected to change hands for $700-$900. Â Lot #33 is a Marilyn Monroe original vintage gelatin silver press photograph depicting the late actress arriving at Madison Square Garden on May 19, 1962, to perform her iconic rendition of â€œHappy Birthday, Mr. Presidentâ€• for JFK at a Democratic National Committee fundraiser. Monroe is pictured wearing a legendary Jean Louis gownâ€”designed by Bob Mackieâ€”and is accompanied by her former father-in-law, Isidore Miller. The photo should top out at $600-$750. Â Lot #285 is Jacqueline Kennedy period 8-inch-by-10-inch silver gelatin photograph by Yousuf Karsh, depicting the First Lady in an elegant formal portrait. The image captures Jackie posed in evening dress with pearl necklace, a classic Karsh composition emphasizing poise, grace, and sculptural lighting. This is a vintage photographic print from the period, not a later reproduction. Karsh is one of the most important 20th Century photographers. The estimate is $250-$350.
