Summary

Double Wins for Sleeve Sponsor Jetcoin as Huddersfield Defeats EPL Burnley in FA Cup Game, After Successful $JET Fundraise

Message

Singapore, January 13, 2022 -- Blockchain-powered sports and entertainment NFT solution Jetcoin celebrates the victory of their sleeve-sponsored team Huddersfield Town A.F.C. which has defeated Burnley in the FA Cup Third Round. This comes close on the heels of the sport NFT solutions provider's IDO which closed successfully a week before, followed by its listing on popular BSC (Binance Smart Chain) DEX (decentralized exchange) Pancakeswap, with 80% of the funds raised, locked in liquidity on the platform. Broadcast in 38 countries with potential viewership of 200 million, the FA Cup games offer massive global exposure and we couldn't be prouder of our team Huddersfield's amazing performance on the pitch this past weekend, declares Jetcoin CEO and founder Eric Alexandre. Three match jerseys worn at the game are redeemable for fans through the JET Interactive NFT cards. History on Repeat? Double Underdog Wins with Jetcoin Sleeve Sponsorship Currently, Burnley competes in the top tier of English Football, the English Premier League, while Town competes in the Championship, the second tier. For Jetcoin, the upset win is reminiscent of the 2018 FA Cup Championship when another David-Goliath tale played out as Wigan Athletic F.C., a League One team two divisions down EPL, scored a historic win against Manchester City, the then leading team in the EPL. Both times saw sport NFT solutions provider Jetcoin supporting the underdog with sleeve sponsorship and emerging victorious. 2022 also marks the 100th anniversary of Huddersfield's only FA Cup success in 1922, a run which began with a 2-2 draw at Turf Moor, home stadium to Burnley.
