Message

Today it is easy to start a company but to sustain business is difficult. Even an online presence is useful when the work is noticed. It is high time we acknowledge the need for a global relationship that is the key to developing a good clientele. And just because the photo imaging company offers low cost prices it does not mean they give a bad quality. Clipping Path India based in United Kingdom has proven clients worldwide who endorse the outsourcing. Fresh out of college the creative graphic designers have spread their aroma of work. Imagine the effect that a natural drop shadow can have on an image? Much like the different versions of coffee, this company has vanilla designers but with a creative streak. On the menu are much more services of photo imaging that have brought back customers from across the world. From UK to Australia, from Netherlands to USA, the data base is increasing.

Flush with the success of its services the company which has an office in UK is already attracting attention of new users who can benefit. With the increase in the number of websites, the need for good visuals, images on the websites has increased. Clipping Path India has highly talented staff that can do any kind of image manipulation, masking, or retouching. And the costs are low only because the workforce is based in Dhaka, Bangladesh. Like many other outsourcing projects this has become successful too. With a team that works 24 x7, it is almost like having a photo department within the company. Clients are able to track their orders anytime after they have given the job. With online quality control and also 24 email services the client knows at every stage what is happening with the work.

Expanding their services offshore has been the best move for Clipping Path. Chief Executive Mr. Atiqur Sumon of Clipping Path India said, “We understand that most clients now prefer dealing directly and also demand immediate services. We are able to deal with this. We have a 3-shift team so everyone works at their pace and also is able to deliver a quality job. The testimonials on the website say it all.” To gain trust and establish a working relationship we also give trial offers. Once the confidence is established, we are able to execute any kind of work.” He adds, “We have a wide range of clients in different industries. They are web developers, graphic companies, and individual clients. We also cater to photo studios, catalog companies, printing press and photographers.”

Clipping Path India, works with the latest digital technologies to service their growing list of clients. With the application of, adobe photoshop CS3, adobe photoshop CS3 plug-ins and PTGui Pro, the professionals are able to deliver competent results.
